KEEGAN THEATRE’S NEW ISLAND PROJECT: “Stones In His Pockets”

I don’t know when I’ve seen two actors portray a multitude of characters with such action and character study. I’m talking about Eric Lucas and Matthew Keenan in Keegan Theatre’s New Island Project: “Stones In His Pockets.” This comedy, written by Irish playwright Marie Jones, takes place in a rural town in County Kerry, Ireland where a movie crew has moved in with an American actress and needing lots of local extras. Lucas and Keenan together play over 15 different roles including the lovely actress, Caroline Giovanni. They are nothing short of amazing as they magically and seamlessly slip in and out of each character. They hold your attention with their conversations weaving a story that is both hilarious and touching. By the way, Lucas never looked lovelier than as the actress Caroline. Director and Keegan co-founder Kerry Waters Lucas makes it real and it all works. Don’t miss this very entertaining tour de force show, “Stones In His Pockets.” It runs through Aug. 23 at Theatre on the Run at 3700 Four Mile Run Drive.
